

Play it Safe - Tips for Winter Hiking & Snowshoeing

There's no need to stop enjoying the outdoors when winter comes! Here are a few tips that will help keep you safe and comfortable in the colder weather.

- Dress in layers, looking for items that will keep you warm and dry.
- Know your route. Know when sunset is expected and plan to be off the trail well before. Carry a map and a flashlight.
- Some trails go over waterways and near steep slopes. Check the snow/ice conditions when approaching these areas.
- Note that snowshoeing trails may take you across or alongside snowmobile routes.
- Our normal sense of thirst lets us down in winter, so be sure to keep drinking water.
- The sun may be weaker, but it can still pack a punch; use at least an SPF 15 sun screen.
- Hike with a friend. Leave word of where you are going, and when you are expected back.
- Pack a few extra items to add more comfort and safety when you are out. A first aid kit, an extra warm layer for when you stop, a piece of closed cell foam to sit on, water, some high energy snacks, spare socks and mitts, and some lip protection.

Many of these tips came from Hike Ontario. Check-out their full winter hiking fact sheet at hikeontario.com.

A Wetland for All Seasons

A Wetland for All Seasons

Minesing Wetlands continue to amaze in any season!

The Mad River snowshoe trail takes you along the river as it meanders through the internationally significant Minesing Wetlands. Spanning more than 15,000 acres, the Minesing's unique assemblage of fens, marshes, swamps and bogs supports a network of sensitive flora and fauna, some rare or endangered.

Note: The Mad is a fast-moving river, making for poor ice conditions. Stay off the ice.

Waterfowl Viewing Tower

The 12'-high waterfowl viewing tower offers a bird's eye view of the wetland and its inhabitants. With the Mad River winding northwest to converge with the Nottawasaga River, this area experiences flooding in the spring, attracting a myriad of waterfowl.

Remember to take off your snowshoes before climbing the tower!
